Multidimensional:

having many aspects or facets, exhibiting many diverse characteristics

Luke's terminology stresses Levi's decisive break with his former vocation and his continuing life of discipleship. This decision undoubtedly involved
making financial and career sacrifices.

Thomas Constable
Expository Notes Of Dr. Constable

Luke 5:27-29
Following A
Multidimensional God

The people who soar the highest in the Lord presently and who will be rewarded in the kingdom eternally are those who have left things behind. I've seen my own life limited when I was not willing to do so. Satan wants to weigh us down with the stuff of this world. Jesus wants to set us free.

Jon Courson Courson's Application Commentary

Luke 5:27-29

Multidimensional God

- 1. Full Abandonment & Commitment (v27-29)
- 2. Pursue Righteousness & Friendliness (30-32)

2. Pursue Righteousness & Friendliness (30-32)

If you find the party or the people affecting you rather than you affecting them, watch out. But if, like Jesus, you can go into a place and make a difference by your joy and the unmistakable reality of God's work in your life, then go with God's blessing.

3. Experience Joy & Sorrow (v33-35)

A wedding feast was the most vivid picture of joy and happiness in that culture. During the weeklong wedding feast it was understood that joy was more important than conformity to religious rituals. If any ceremonial observance would detract from the joy of a wedding feast, it was not required.

Following A Multidimensional God & Embrace The New (v36-39)

Let the ferment of each great religious movement and new era express itself in its own way. We must not encourage the ill-judged speed of those who want to force the pace, and fling away the bottle-skins before they are done with. But if the bottle-skins have evidently served their purpose and lie discarded on the ground, that will not affect the vintage, which is reddening on the hills. Go and pick the fruit God is giving you, place it carefully in baskets and let it have new skins.
